HOUSTON, TX--(Marketwire - 05/12/10) - Bederra Corporation (Pinksheets:BEDA - News) management released the following in response to frequently asked shareholder questions. Management also stated that it intends to periodically issue such announcements to address shareholder comments, questions and concerns, from time to time. Management requested that shareholders place any inquiries via email to info@bederra.com.

Are the 3:1 voting rights that you announced on insider common stock on a special series of stock?

Since this initial announcement, the Board has elected not to designate any increase in the participatory rights of any class of outstanding company shares and does not foresee a need to do so as company officers/insiders control a majority of the issued and outstanding common stock. As previously announced, the Board did elect to return to treasury and cancel all outstanding convertible preferred shares and currently does not have any preferred shares issued or authorized to be issued.

How much stock do insiders control?

In excess of 800 million shares of restricted common stock.

Is the Company required to report all information or filings to the SEC?

Bederra Corporation has no class of stock registered under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and so is a "non-reporting company." As such, Bederra is not subject to any filing or reporting requirements, though the company voluntarily reports financial and other disclosure to the public via <http://www.otcmarkets.com/>'s "OTC Disclosure and News Service," thus the nomenclature "Alternative Reporting Standard" under company information for Bederra on otcmarkets.com. Disclosure is made at the decision of management and in the format and manner prescribed by otcmarkets.com modeled after rule 15c2-11 disclosure guidelines. The company's disclosure level is currently categorized as "Limited Information" by otcmarkets.com and management is pursuing an upgraded status in its best efforts to increase public transparency and investor relations.

When will the company achieve Pinksheet Current Status?

The company's accountants are currently working on updating the financial statements and disclosures to bring Bederra into compliance with otcmarkets.com's requirements for "Pinksheets Current Issuers," and management hopes to achieve this in the very near future. To this end, management expects to post updated disclosure information and the quarterly financial results for the period ending March 31, 2010 on otcmarkets.com by May 15, 2010. At such time as this information is posted, the company's legal counsel should be able to render opinion as to the current and correct status of the information as posted. This information and opinion should satisfy the requirements of otcmarkets.com compliance and achieve the upgraded status of "Pinksheets Current Issuer."

What is the current status of the share structure and stock buyback?

In order to achieve increased public transparency, management has in recent history been announcing share structure updates via press release between voluntarily posting such essential information in quarterly company disclosure documents on otcmarkets.com. Most recently, the company announced on April 20th that there were 1,378,759,000 shares of common stock issued and outstanding, approximately 404,827,453 of which were free trading. Also at this time, Management eliminated all outstanding shares of preferred (and convertible) common stock and reduced the total shares authorized from five billion to 1.9 billion, and this has not changed. Management effected this reduction of the total shares authorized to exhibit its commitment to increased shareholder value while maintaining a capital structure that will enable the company to actively pursue its vision of diversified growth through mergers and acquisitions (and the retention of human resources) essential to its businesses in the medical services industry. The company's buyback has continued with shares purchased by and for the company on the open market through a corporate account. The company must request a certificate representing these shares from time to time, in order for them to be returned to the treasury and canceled, thus reducing the number of shares issued and outstanding. Management intends to request and cancel such certificates on an incremental basis. At such time as management requests, receives and cancels any shares resultant of the ongoing buyback program, it will be released via press release and reflected on any updated disclosure documents released through otcmarkets.com's OTC Disclosure and News service. As announced, the company's buyback has begun and continues relative to Buyins.net's ascertained "squeeze trigger price" -- the price per share that their analysts believe short sellers will begin losing money on their positions. This squeeze trigger price was most recently reported by Buyins.net to be $0.0016 per share on May 3 -- up from $0.0015 on March 31. The company has stated it will buyback shares at or below the squeeze trigger price and management has engaged Buyins.net to provide an ongoing analysis of short and/or naked short sales data to help build shareholder value by aiding in the timing of the company's repurchases, and by identifying and assisting in the potential litigation of any illegal naked short selling or manipulation of Bederra shares.

Buyins.net reports on its homepage that BEDA has been removed from the Threshold Security List, yet its most recent PR states that 3.9 billion aggregate shares of BEDA have been shorted since August 2009. What does this mean?

A company on the Threshold Security List is removed from the List when "fails to deliver" exceeding 10,000 shares are not reported in five consecutive trading days. However, fails to deliver could have occurred in any of the four previous days or following days, while the stock remains off the list. The data tells us that significant short sales have occurred and short positions have accumulated but enough shares have been borrowed and/or covered in at least 1 of any 5 consecutive trading days so that Bederra is not currently on the Threshold Security List. Management is very concerned about possible abuses of BEDA through naked short sales and/or other manipulative abuses. Management recognizes that while short sales have a legitimate place in the markets, naked short selling does not. Furthermore, management believes that it may be possible that a so-called "Short & Distort" manipulation scheme may be underway in the abuse of the company's common stock, and management is taking further steps to identify and deter any attempted damage to the company's trading and public status. The company has gathered a significant amount of information from several sources including Buyins.net, Broadridge, the Depository Trust Company (DTCC), as well as concerned shareholders and third parties, and is considering several proactive courses of action to address any such illegitimate practices involving the company's stock. Furthermore, the company has retained as legal counsel, Applebaum & Zouvas, SEC attorneys, located in San Diego, California, (www.apzlaw.com/). The firm is investigating further remedies and potential for litigation and redress.

Is the company continuing to pursue additional acquisitions?

Yes. The stated business plan of Bederra Corporation is and has been to create a diversified medical services company with long-term growth to shareholder value. With the current Price Per Share (PPS) being low and, in management's opinion, drastically undervalued relative to the company's current assets and potential for future growth, attracting larger mergers and acquisitions targets has been challenging with management desiring to avoid issuing what it sees as excessive amounts of stock. However, management is continuing discussions with several potential acquisition targets, in consideration of a higher price per share level, and is confident that it will be able to cost-effectively continue to acquire proven and diversified medical industry targets and human resources that will drive short and long term shareholder value through increased revenues and an enhanced price per share.
